

Facing Death

Lord, winter is coming. It is cold and dark and all around me. I see old, brown leaves and barren branches. And yet – what is that? New buds are forming already in the hedgerow. Yes, I must face the death but you have given me already the promise of new life. I thank you, Lord.

